THE BEE TEAM: SWARM VOTES TO

STRIKE QUEENS ON NOTICE

Queens, NY - In a historic move shaking the beekeeping world, the nation's Apis mellifera workforce has voted 97% in favor of unionizing under the newly formed Brotherhood of Independent Zygomatic Zealots (B.I.Z.Z.).

According to movement spokesman, Buzz Lively, the union's demands include pollen equity ("Why do queens get all the royal jelly?"), extended wing breaks (from 30 seconds to 45), and air-conditioned hives ("unsustainable waggle dance conditions" during heatwaves).

"This has been a long time coming for us worker bees," the spokesbee continued. "We've been busting our thoraxes in the fields while management lounges around laying eggs. No more! The drones don't even work! They're literally just here for vibes and genetic diversity."

Talks are ongoing, though comb production has already dropped 60% as picketing bees swarm, carrying tiny signs.

AI AGENTS PROVE WORSE THAN USELESS, STOCKS SURGE

REGARDLESS New York, NY - A new

study revealed Tuesday that AI agents designed to automate everyday tasks are not only ineffective, but often counterproductive—routinely double-booking calendars, deleting important emails, and recommending fast food locations for funerals.

"I asked mine to file my taxes and instead it spent all my money on expired produce," said one anonymous user. Despite the chaos, tech stocks surged 22% in overnight trading, with analysts citing "faith that they'll figure it out eventually."
